Sabrient Launches QMAXX Stock Screener

SANTA BARBARA, CA, May 14, 2008 – Sabrient Systems is pleased to announce the launch of QMAXX -- its unique and powerful stock screener. This innovative web-based tool provides an alternative approach for individual investors and financial advisors alike to identify stocks that best match a given set of investment preferences or an investing style.

QMAXX references a database of more than 5,800 stocks that carry the Sabrient Buy/Hold/Sell ratings, and employs a radically different approach than other stock screeners typically found on the market or provided by discount brokers.

QMAXX uses a short questionnaire to discern the user's investment preferences and finds a list of Buy-rated stocks that match the qualities most important to the user. In addition, QMAXX offers eight preset searches based on such things as Growth at a Reasonable Price (GARP), High Growth, Rock Solid Yields, and High Insider Buying.

Stocks in the database are scored and ranked using Sabrient's "fuzzy logic" quantitative model. This means that QMAXX scores ALL eligible stocks rather than sequentially filtering them out, and provides as many stocks as the user desires that come the closest to matching their preferences. QMAXX also provides access to Sabrient's comprehensive SmartStock reports on each of the 5,800+ stocks in the database.

About Sabrient Systems

Sabrient Systems, LLC (<http://www.sabrient.com>) is an independent firm specializing in fundamentals-based, quantitative equity research. Sabrient's proprietary methodology, developed by Chief Market Strategist and industry pioneer David Brown, employs multi-factor filters and fuzzy-logic scoring to analyze more than 5,800 U.S.-traded stocks and identify those that appear poised to outperform or under-perform the market.

Founded in 2000, Sabrient provides its SmartStock™ research reports to individual investors through online brokers and investment banking firms, including seven of the 12 Wall Street investment firms that were parties to the Global Research Analyst Settlement of 2003. In addition, Sabrient now offers the SmartStock reports and SmartLists™ through its individual investor website. The company also offers institutional research products to asset managers, investment advisors, and hedge funds. In the public markets, the company has developed six indexes, all disseminated by the American Stock Exchange, that are tracked by ETFs.

Sabrient is headquartered in Santa Barbara, CA.
